WALKABLE CITY

Help make Berkeley an even more walkable city by completing a survey, visiting our pedestrian wikimap to share with us your opinions on routes you use, and attending a Dec. 1 meeting. We are updating our pedestrian plan, a blueprint to guide how projects will make it safer and more comfortable for people of all ages to walk across our city. The pedestrian plan will analyze pedestrian crash data throughout Berkeley, identify problem areas or intersections and propose solutions.

Pedestrian Plan Open House

Saturday, December 1, 2018

11:00 am - 2:00 pm

Francis Albrier Community Center

2800 Park Street

You'll get to talk to staff and provide input about all things pedestrian: crosswalks, sidewalks, street trees, walking to work and more. Learn more about the Pedestrian Master Plan project, complete the survey, fill out our wiki and come to our open house. We want to make it easier to walk Berkeley!

NEW TRANSFER STATION

We're having public workshops to re-design our transfer station for garbage, recycling, compost and other materials so that Berkeley ships less to landfills. We'd like your input. The eventual goal of a new site is simple: if we recover more of what can be re-used or recycled, we slash what Berkeley trucks to the mountains of garbage that fill landfills.

Come out to our listening session to share your vision:

Transfer Station Redesign: Listening Sessions

Wednesday November 28th

6 pm to 9 pm

South Berkeley Senior Center

2939 Ellis Street

Saturday December 1st

1 pm to 4 pm

Live Oak Community Center

1301 Shattuck Avenue

We want your ideas. There are things we may not have considered. We'll take what we hear at these listening sessions as part of a comprehensive study to identify options for developing the site and vet them with community members and other stakeholders. The study will also provide cost estimates and financing options. Help lead us - and all of Berkeley - toward a future with zero waste.
