The Golden Sheaf Bakery building at 2071 Addison St. was designed by architect Clinton Day. The building is associated with Berkeley's first wholesale/retail bakery, founded by Jonathan Garrard Wright in 1877. The subject building was constructed in 1905 as a storage building and loading area for the bakery. The classically inspired façade consists of brick and terracotta (by Gladding, McBean Co) and has a three-part composition with four pilasters that frame three vertical bays. In 2000, the Berkeley Repertory Theater renovated and restored the building and turned it into the Nevo Education center.

B10. Significance:

The Golden Sheaf Bakery building was designated a City of Berkeley Landmark on December 19, 1977, nominated by Robert Y. Feldman. The property is also listed on the National Register of Historic Places (#78000644). Both the Landmark and National Register designations were based on its architecture. The building appears to have been restored at the front street side elevation, with no noticeable alterations since 1978 that have impaired its historic character or would change the building's architectural significance. The building contributes to the Shattuck Avenue Downtown Historic District.
